with Lifeline and the Emergency Broadband Benefit

Keeping up with technology can be a struggle for individuals and families with limited financial means. Having a cell phone, a laptop or internet service at home is not a luxury – it is a necessity in the modern world. The Lifeline and Emergency Broadband Benefit federal programs provide assistance that can help you get and stay connected. If you participate in Medicaid or SNAP, you qualify for both federal programs.

Lifeline (Free Smartphone Program)

Lifeline provides eligible low-income individuals with a free smartphone and free monthly data, free monthly minutes and unlimited texting. This is a federal program and should not be confused with the state's Lifeline utility assistance program.

If you qualify for Lifeline, you qualify for the Emergency Broadband Benefit, but you need to apply for both.

Emergency Broadband Benefit

The Emergency Broadband Benefit is a temporary program to help families and households access internet service during the COVID-19 pandemic. The benefit provides a discount of up to $50 per month towards broadband service for eligible households and up to $75 per month for households on qualifying Tribal lands. Eligible households can also receive a one-time discount of up to $100 to purchase a laptop, desktop computer, or tablet from participating providers. If you have a Lifeline smartphone, you can also request the Emergency Broadband benefit for unlimited talk, text, and data – see below for more information.

Note: The Emergency Broadband Benefit is temporary and ends when funds are expended.
